SALUTATIO

IN the publication of this work we have not intended it as a Sunday School text-book, neither has it been entirely given up to the nonsensical side of college life. We have endeavored, as 'twere,

"To hold the mirror up to Nature,"

and show you Middlebury College as it is.

We have given you many interesting data, which are forgotten unless preserved in some such form as this, and we have perpetuated the memory of some good laugh which would otherwise have been lost.

It is, perhaps, unfair to saddle the responsibility of publication upon the class of '81, since the work from beginning to end has devolved entirely upon one person, and, moreover, confined to the spare moments of a rather too active life. If the book has merit, testify to the fact by taking a few copies. If not, take pity on our pocket book and subscribe.

The contributions toward illustration from the students has been less than ever before, and yet we give a larger book with more illustrations at a less price than has yet been done. We do not say that you cannot live happily without this book, but if you cannot get twenty-five cents worth out of it, something ails you.

As Daniel Webster said of Massachusetts, so say we of the Kaleidoscope,

"THERE SHE IS."

EIGHTY-ONE.

IT is customary at this season of the year for students to talk about climbing the hill of knowledge; fighting the battles of life in pursuit of knowledge; running the race which the stern decree of fate has laid out for them. It's all nonsense. The climbing has been up the lightning rod of the chapel to get the bell tongue—the fighting has been to break some Freshman's cane, and the running has been around the diamond on the ball field.

As we step down and out we feel that peculiar, sinking sensation inside, which betokens that we have taken something which doesn't agree with us; and we have. We have been taking a good-bye look at the countless familiar objects which have become dear to us.

The old chapel bell, the ball field, the campus, broken bats, the old foot-ball, tin horns, they all speak to us to-day in a language which is new, and yet every word and statement is intelligible.

We are leaving the old college buildings at a time when genuine student life is making a more vigorous effort to gain a foot hold.

There is more enthusiam over collegiate affairs, athletic and otherwise. Middlebury College has been too quiet during the last few years. She must make more noise in the world; noise always attracts a crowd, and when that is secured there is an opportunity to do good work. Middlebury College is waking up. There are advantages connected with its location and its method of instruction which make it possible to gain students where others would fail. It lacks only that great and important element, enthusiasm. This is now taking a promising start, and though our time has come for departure we shall watch the developments with a deep and fervent interest, born of our desire to see the institution prosper. To all who have made life happy for us here, we extend a regretful good-bye, and to those who have not in the emotion of the hour we say,

"Go thy way, thy sins are forgiven thee."

EIGHTY-TWO.

THE jump from the lower to the upper classes is very marked. You can tell a Junior as far as you can see him. There is an individuality about him which is unmistakable. You can tell him by the way he raises his hat to a lady. There is a strange mixture of Sophomoric recklessness combined with a small modicum of Senioric dignity which is simply irresistible. Botany is the great study of Junior year; assigned that place in the curriculum because a Junior is sure to be affected in the region of his heart and ladies' love flowers. The logical conclusion drawn from the enthymeme above, makes a large number of specimens sure—Juniors do a great deal of pressing.

The study of botany demands it, and they get into the habit of pressing everything with which they come in contact. This statement is made on reliable feminine authority. A Junior's livery bill will exceed that of the other three years put together.

This also is entirely owing to the botany; a man dosen't want to drive off after specimens alone you know. A Junior's life is an unusually happy one, generally speaking, but the class of '82 will groan in anguish of spirit when an easy life is mentioned.

Astronomy and Mechanics are not what they were, for where once a quart of oil sufficed, there must now be purchased gallons. But look at the development of brain! We are so rapidly acquiring knowledge that great bumps appear on some of our most backward Juniors.

Even the worst of us are quite "nobby," and some of the bumps have grown so rapidly that they have been restrained with court plaster.

The hand of Providence goaded on by the faculty has severed us from some members during the year, but they have our sympathy, and we know that they meant no wrong, but that circumstantial evidence took a peculiar turn and floored them.

EIGHTY-THREE.

SOPHOMORES SUMUS. Yes, indeed! And to be a Sophomore is a pleasure which takes away one-half the delight usually found in singing that stirring battle hymn:

"I want to be an angel."

It is astonishing how quickly a Sophomore forgets that he was ever a Freshman, and the disdain with which he looks down upon the lower classman is only equaled by the ease and grace with which he rides through the studies of the year. A Sophomore never goes on foot.

It is almost a crime to plug. It is the only year in college where riding a horse through thick and thin can be successfully accomplished.

The Freshman is afraid to; the Junior usually has a girl who pleads with him until he promises not to use ponies of any kind, and the Senior has no need for them.

We are Sophomores, and in the "great and glorious future" we expect to make the sparks fly. Surely we ought with two Benjamin Franklins in the class, and every one a member of the Local Telegraph Company.

We have lost several members since last year, but we have still a hand to shake though our "Foote" has gone. Another loss is "Felt," and through the Winter we were short of "Cowles," but the warmth of Spring assures us that the class "Wilso(o)n" recover and be ready for the ordeal which shall make us Juniors or alumni.

EIGHTY-FOUR.

FRESHMEN are proverbially green. We didn't seem so at the fitting school, and though with becoming modesty we acknowledge it here, in our heart of hearts we deny it in toto.

We are a modest class. Hang it all we've got to be! We have not indulged in cane rushes and conflicts with the Sophomores.

We knew better. Glory is a good thing, but good clothes are preferable if you can't have both. It has been our good fortune to stand afar off and see men dragged across these gravel walks, and we entered college with a grim determination to pursue our career in garments which are not half soled and heeled.

We are not cowards. One of our men came up through the campus at half-past nine alone once, this year, and one of them entered the inner throne of the temple which becomes sacred at night-fall.

It was a Freshmen who tacked the Bible to the desk, and we are proud of his courage and fortitude.

We did not expect to gain positions of honor as soon as we entered the college, and it was well we didn't, but we are stalwart American citizens in embryo, and all we ask is an opportunity.

In a year or two we shall taste the fruits which hang beyond our grasp now, and look back upon Freshman year as a comical sort of an episode in life after all.

Motto :—"'Tis better to give than to receive."

PRINDLE.—"His eyes are homes of silent prayer."
HYDE.—"My mouth is my strong point; no one doubts it."
HOWARD.—"Wisdom shall die with you."
BUTTOLPH.—"My life is one demm'd horrid grind."
ROSS.—"The ladies call him sweet."
POWERS.—"Some are born great."
BOICE.—"A proper man. A very handsome man."
BILLINGS.—"Not yet mature, yet matchless."
BARTON, R. J.—"Picked from an illustrious few."
SEVERANCE.—"Where got'st thou that goose look, thou cream faced loon."
PILLSBURY.—"Why! My skin hangs about me like an old lady's loose gown."
MURKLAND.—"With words of learned length and thundering sound,
He mazed the listening rustics gathered 'round."
HARVEY.—"'Tis pleasant, sure, to see one's name in print,
A book's a book although there's nothing in't."
HUTCHINSON.—"Far off his coming shone."
BROOKS.—"God made the world, but I own it."
POLLARD.—"How like a fawning publican he looks."
PIPER.—"Where'er he went, this Freshman's hair
Was sure to fix the public stare."
SHELDON.—"Sharp misery had worn him to the bones."
PALMER.—"Oh! He was gentle, mild and virtuous."
LEAVENWORTH.—"Oh! That this good blossom could be kept from cankers."
PARKER.—"Quoth he: I'll love you till I die;
Quoth she: Take my advice, don't try."
JONES.—"Thou slave! Thou wretch! Thou coward!
Thou little valiant, great in villany."
STEWART—"Oh! Thou eternal mover of the Heavens,
Look with a gentle eye upon this wretch."
JUNE.—"Heaven help me! I am but little of a parson."
BARTON, R. J.—"My only books
Were woman's looks,
And folly's all they've taught me."
BROWN.—"The grand debate,
The popular harangue, the tart reply
The logic, and the wisdom and the wit—
I know them all."
MILLER.—"Intemperate youth, by sad experience found
Ends in an age imperfect and unsound."
STEARNS.—"As chaste as unsunned snow."

TREE PLANTED, ... The Elm.

Reunion appointed for 1885.

☞The cut and inscription below were found in the ruins of Herculaneum, and are ascribed to Johannes Davidius Jonesarius, B. C., 3000, who was at that time founding a society for the prevention of cruelty to bed-bugs.

"When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for a man to sell SOAP, it first behooves him to protect himself against tirades invendoes and assaults upon his wearing apparel."

There was a young man in M. C.,
Went off on a "blank" of a spree;
He took a fish pole,
But bless his poor soul,
Not a sign of a fish could he see.

So this gentle young man from M. C.,
Tried a place where he ought not to be;
He got a good bite,
For a dog came in sight,
And bit him just under the knee.

A College Rhyme.

A Freshman enters the classic halls,
A leaf from the tree-top gently falls;
With an earnest gaze, he scans his book,
The leaf floats down in a mountain brook.

A Sophomore trifles with college rules,
The leaflet lingers in stagnant pools;
He shuns suspension and labors well,
The leaf floats on in a shady dell.

A Junior treasures a golden curl,
The leaflet plays in an eddy's whirl;
He leaves his love for a brighter face,
The leaf speeds on with a swifter pace.

A Senior yearns for a blooming bride,
The leaf is at last on the river wide;
His manly worth by the world is tried,
The leaf is tossed on the ocean's tide.

A hero striving for fame we see,
The leaf bears seed from its parent tree;
The victor's crown of success he wears,
An isle of the sea a forest bears.

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

THE CIGARETTES of the KINNEY TOBACCO CO., successors to Kinney Brothers, 515 to 525 West Twenty-Second Street, New York, justly enjoy the highest reputation of any similar manufactures in this country. In the first place, only the finest natural rice paper is used by them, thus assuring the smoker against the injuries that attend the shellac, arsenic and other health sapping sophistications that are found in the inferior papers used by other firms.

The Kinney Tobacco Company make a great number of brands, to suit every shade of taste among cigarette smokers, and the apppreciation in which these are held is amply attested by the fact that they are largely sold in every city in the world, wherever their merits are known, to the exclusion of all other makes. For a real delicious, sweet smoke, try their latest cigarette, the VETERAN.—Boston Gazette.
